Subject: We draw the lines

To be frank, I am not on board with this Swartzenegger initiative. How much is the taxpayer being bilked by this proposal. How was it budgetted for? Who are those being appointed? and by whom are they being appointed?

As bad as the present system is, I think there is more visibility from the voter's perspective. Do not trust what happens behind closed doors even less than so called gerrymandering. We seem to see such suggestions coming from the minority in a state in order to gain an advantage over the majority. This does not happen in places like Idaho, Wyoming etc (majority in those places belong to the republican creed so it does not matter then how gerrymandered they are. We also had the term limits put in place by those of similar interests and as a consequence, we lose valuable expertise.

DO NOT TRUST THIS
