Subject: Citizens' Redistricting Commission

It has come to my attention that, so far, there is no representative of the far northern part of the state on the Redistricting Commission. The rural far north is a unique area in many ways, both geographically and socially. The citizens who live in this part of the state are active, involved, interested, contributing members of California society. I feel that it is important that they be represented on the commission and sincerely hope that this will be taken into consideration when the remaining six members are chosen.
